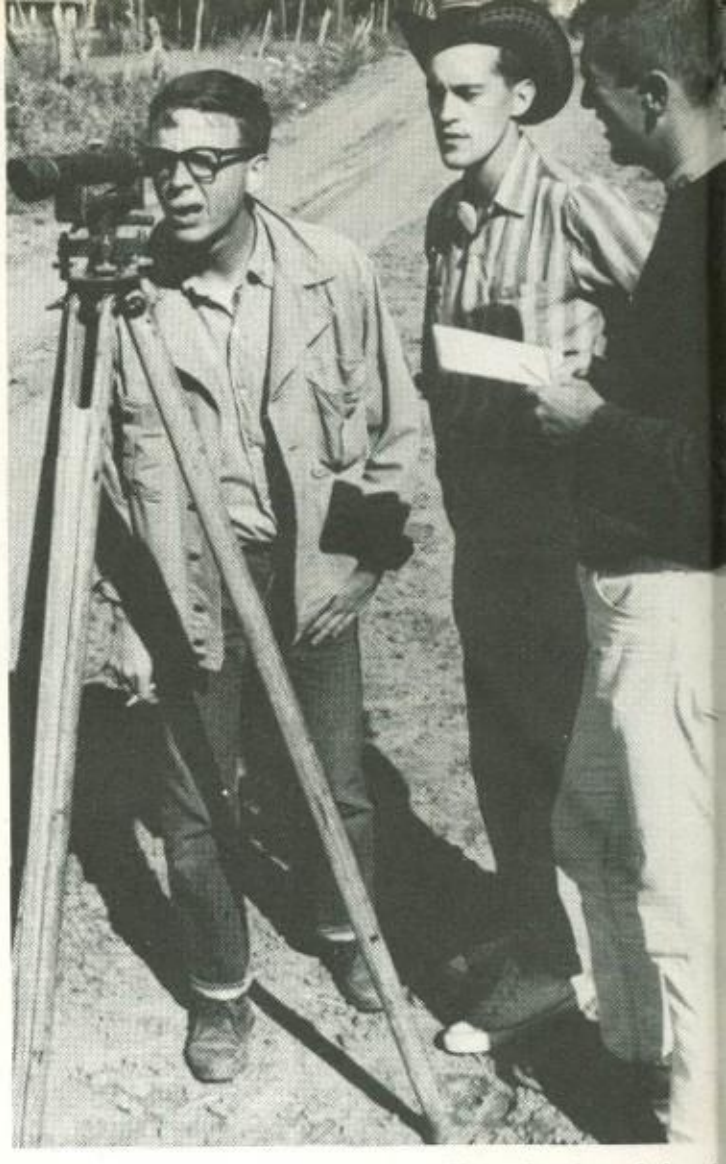
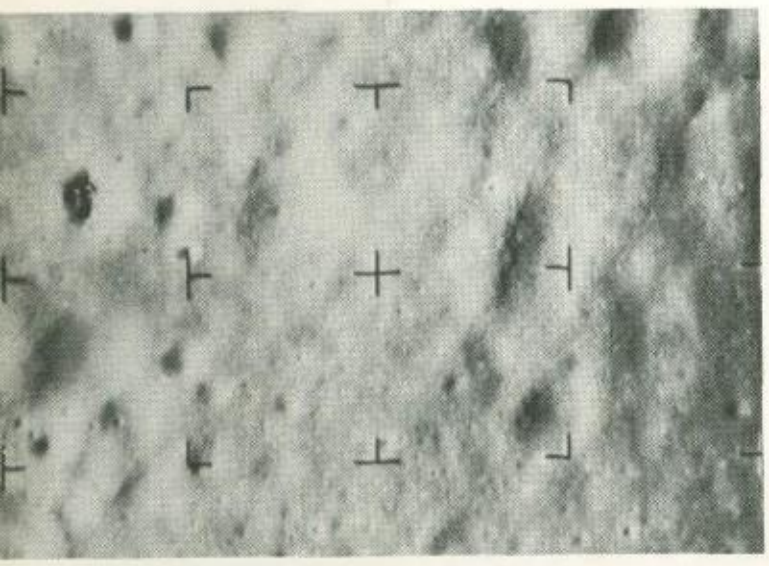
LES MEMOIRES

Capital Appearance—The Beatles performed for a youthful audience in Washington on the night of February 12.



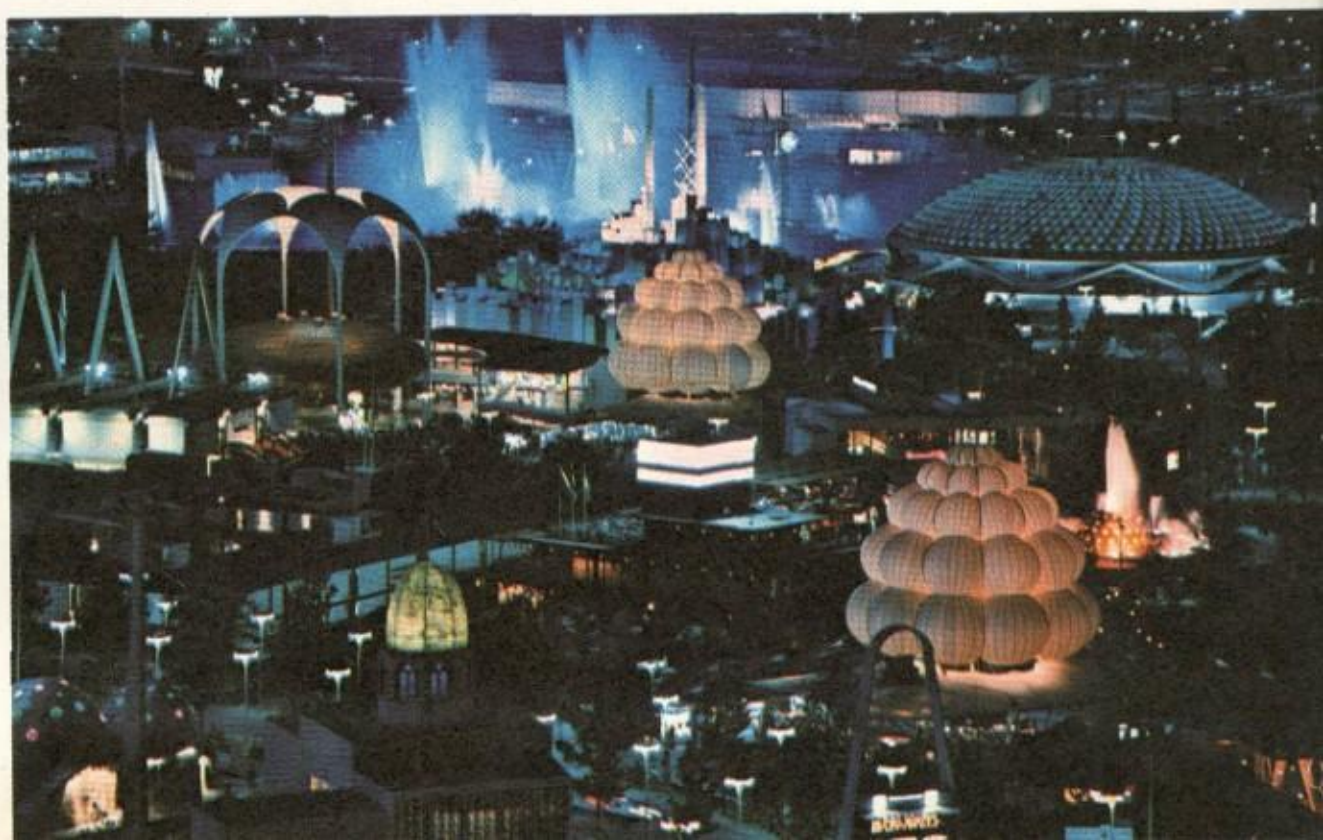
Opening for Juniors—These college juniors joined the Peace Corps' new summer project for six to eight weeks of training similar to that for regular Peace Corps volunteers. They later did surveying work near Taos, N.M. After graduation they will be sent to Latin America.



Ranger on Target—This is a photograph of the lunar surface taken by the Ranger 7 spacecraft prior to its impact on the moon July 31st. The area shown is about one and two-thirds miles on a side. The smallest craters are about 30 feet in diameter and 10 feet deep. Some of the large craters are about 300 feet in diameter.

Family Grieves—Gust Carlson, father of Dr. Paul Carlson, medical missionary slain by rebel troops in the Congo, dabbed at his eyes during a news conference in Los Angeles on November 24. He is flanked by his daughter and another son.

New Teen-Age Queen—Smiling Carolyn Mignini, 17, of Baltimore was crowned the new Miss Teen-age America of 1965 in Dallas on November 13.



World's Fair at Night—The New York World's Fair attracted as many visitors at night as it did during the day following its April opening. The nighttime lights set off the beautiful pavilions constructed by many countries.

Democratic Victor—President Lyndon Johnson won the 1964 election by the greatest plurality and per cent of the total vote in U. S. history. Johnson became President at the assassination of John F. Kennedy in 1963.

Barry's Battle for Votes—Sen. Barry Goldwater was surrounded by fans at Knoxville, Tenn., airport September 16 as he campaigned for the presidency on the Republican ticket. The conservative senator swept to a first-ballot nomination at the convention in San Francisco.

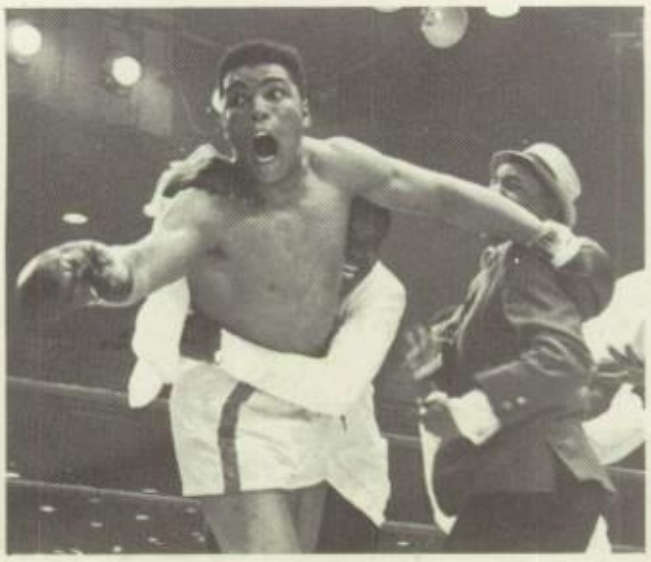
National Events in Review—1964

ds are the Winners—Roger Craig leaped on a group eammates surrounding the pitcher Bob Gibson mo- ts after the last out in the seventh World Series e won by the Redbirds over the Yankees, 7-5, in St. is.

I'm the Greatest—Cassius Clay whooped it up with his handlers after he won the world heavyweight title in Miami Beach in February. He was credited with a technical knockout of Sonny Liston when Liston failed to answer the bell for the seventh round.



Alaskan Quake—A whole line of cars rested about 20 feet below street level on a main thoroughfare in Anchorage the day following the disastrous earthquake on March 27.

Northeastern Junior-Senior High School
Manchester, Pennsylvania Volume 7

Northeastern Is More Than a Building; It Is a Heart of Human Activity.

We see Northeastern's many halls, classrooms and doors, but there is more within this concrete and brick structure which we view. Students learning and teachers instructing, these sights too make our vista of Northeastern complete. All these are bound together for 180 days a year to form an institution of learning. Here minds are developed to form mature persons who will someday govern our nation of freedom. This view of Northeastern is important because what we are observing has such a basic importance in our complex world. Take a thorough look and evaluate.

Scholarship

After two years of planning and improving, Northeastern has been accredited according to the standards set up by the Secondary Commission of the Middle States Association. This major step in the fulfillment of our educational program was made possible through the combined efforts of the administration, faculty, students, and citizens of the community. Not resting on our laurels, we continue toward newer and higher goals, providing students with the most favorable learning experiences. Northeastern is growing and with it grows the student; mentally, spiritually, physically, and socially.

Administration Organizes And Coordinates

It is the responsibility of the administration of Northeastern High School to organize and coordinate all phases of our educational program. Combining experience, loyalty, and devotion, our administration functions primarily with a desire to improve.

Under the direction of Mr. Orendorf, supervising principal, study methods, materials and plans were correlated by Mr. Reiff, curriculum coordinator. Mr. Sutton and Mr. Sjaeffer in the senior high and Mr. Hendrix in the junior high annex worked efficiently in their demanding positions. Northeastern is indeed fortunate in having such a capable and industrious administrative body.

Responsibility Lies On Shoulders of School Board

School Board; Mrs. Stanley Gross — sec., Stanley Gross — pres., Mary Ellen Snell, Grover C. Koch, L. Wilbur Mayer, Charles W. Richards, Gleason Burdick, Allen A. Beshore, Charles S. Wolf, Russel C. Strine.

An elected body, the Northeastern Board of School Directors is responsible for making the policies of the district. The duties of the board are divided among the six standing committees — Curriculum, Finance, Personnel, Building and Grounds, Budget, Transportation, and Supply.

Meetings, which are usually held on the second Monday of each month, are open to all residents of the district.

College Board Entrance Examinations Given at NHS

Mr. Stammel replaced Mr. Manseau as a guidance counselor when the latter began his doctorial study at the University of Maryland.

Aptitude, personality, and intelligence tests provided an aid to our counselors in helping the students decide what courses they should take. The department offers books, pamphlets, films, and lectures aimed to help the student in choosing a career.

The annual College Tea was organized by the department. College students offered advice to those interested in entering college.

On Saturday, December 5, 1964, College Board Entrance Examinations were given at Northeastern for the first time.

The pleasing atmosphere of the guidance department is a result of the cooperation of the guidance counselors and students.

Visual Aids Complemented Classwork

From multiplication tables to the quadratic formula and from decimals to the Pythagoran theorem are big steps in the understanding of mathematics. Courses offered in the curriculum this year served as stepping stones in this path of learning. Students were given the opportunity to study mathematics on the academic, commercial, and general levels. Tools of the course included slide rules, protractors, compasses, and rulers. Plastic conic sections, wooden geometric puzzles, and films complemented classwork. Developing clear, logical thinking, our mathematics curriculum treats the studies as living, growing subjects calling for new and better techniques.

Background Music Heard In The Library

Music by Montavanni heard in the library! Realxing music was heard in the background of the library for the first time this year. The reactions of nine out of ten students was positive and music by Montavanni was their favorite.

So that more students may have access to the same basic reference books at the same time, more copies of these books have been bought. The fiction section received a boost this year by purchasing paperbacks in hard covers.

This year, with the help of several able student librarians, there was an attempt to build a "Vertical File," commonly called the "Pamphlet File," of useful material. A drawer in the card catalogue contained organized information of the "Vertical File" which makes finding materials very simple.

Approximately twenty pieces of library equipment and materials remained in the library constantly. All other articles were circulated among the students.

For the students at Northeastern, our library remembers that which scientists, historians, poets, philosophers, and others have thought and learned.

Field Trips and Lectures Enhanced Science Program

Darwin and Einstein, Franklin, Edison, and Pasteur all brought us closer to realizing the complexity of our universe. We can better understand the world of science through studying its many wonders. Our science curriculum was on two levels, academic and general, with some degree of specialization. Supplementing the regular courses of study were field trips to Plum Point and Calvert's Cliffs in Maryland. Several students accompanied Mr. Brett, the department head, to a lecture about the laser beam in Hanover. A total of $6000 was spent on equipment in the science department and plans were begun for ecological studies on man's relationship to plants. A student teacher, Mr. Marks, was with the department the last semester.

Knowledge of World History Leads to Understanding of Current Situations

Emphasis in our social studies curriculum is being placed more and more on today's happenings. After attaining a broad background in our American heritage with a knowledge of world history and cultures, we can better grasp the current situations in such trouble spots as Vietnam, the Dominican Republic, and Berlin. Providing opportunities for discussion and debate, controversial questions on the world situation were aired in the social studies classroom.

Extending far beyond the primary concepts of history and geography, our curriculum specialized in such varied fields as Pennsylvania civics and the principles of economics. A detailed study of the United States Constitution was undertaken in the junior year and the seniors were instructed in the problems of democracy.

Television and our increasingly improved communications systems were bringing countries closer and closer together. Yet it is essential that we gain the basic trait of good citizenship in our own communities through an understanding of our American system of government and its democratic functions.

Classroom Plays and Discussions Engaged Our Students

"Je ne comprends pas!" "Ich versteche nicht!"

"I don't understand," is a statement which calls for an explanation. Language, an artificial tool of communication, is used for understanding. Our curriculum offers three languages – English, French, and German.

Records and a new literature book series were purchased for the ninth and tenth grades. Reading lists with the titles of books in our library were compiled by the department for the students.

The Composition and Speech class entered a citizenship contest, and they also originated the Thanksgiving assembly entitled "Turkeys' View of Thanksgiving."

The Audio Lingual Method of teaching, which makes use of records and the literature that accompanies them, has been introduced into the German classes this year. More conversation was employed in both languages: in the German classes, classroom plays were used, while the French students were engaged in discussions.

Behind-the-Wheel Training

Driving the 1964 red Chevrolet was a very important part of the safety education program. All types of road and weather conditions were met in behind-the-wheel training. The other valuable part of the course was the classroom work, where the students strived to learn good safety habits through discussions and movies. The students studied about what makes the car function by seeing the parts, which were secured through a local parts dealer.

Business — the World's Greatest Employer!

Business is the world's greatest employer! Our students begin training for a career in this field in the ninth grade with general business training. Other specialized business courses offered are: commercial math, typing I and II, shorthand I and II, bookkeeping I and II, office practice, business English, and business law.

Shorthand students were given Gregg Tests to measure speed and accuracy in transcription. This was the first year that no one received an award in the Spelling Tests which were sponsored by the Administrative Management Society.

In the spring, the office practice classes took a field trip to business firms in York, Pa., which included Standard Register, Caterpillar, Drovers and Mechanics Bank, and Metropolitan Edison.

Miss Boyer, from Shippensburg State College, began her student teaching in this department in March. Her cooperating teacher was Mrs. Criswell.

"Pushups, position, class begin one, two . . .!" Exercising was only a small integral part of the physical education program instituted by the new instructor, Mrs. Swope. Other phases included: field hockey, soccer, basketball, wrestling, gymnastics, marching, volleyball, tennis, softball, kickball, golf, and track. A Harvard Step Test to measure endurance was given to the girls' physical education classes. The purpose of the test was to measure the body's recovery from strenuous exercise.

To add a new note to the sports that were played in class, skill tests were given to all the students to evaluate the progress which the pupil made in that sport.

Intramural basketball and volleyball was conducted at lunch time for both the girls and the boys. This voluntary activity helped to round out our already well-balanced sports curriculum.

The senior girl's physical education class begins with exercises outside.

New Home Economics Equipment Purchased

Outdoor cooking completes the year of the senior home economics students.

Who were those young ladies scurrying about in the Home Economics rooms this year? Why the homemakers of tomorrow, of course!

Subjects studied in the Home Economics classes included personality development, home safety, infant care, home nursing, interior decorating, qualities of a good husband, and planning their weddings and homes. The students learned to serve attractive and delicious foods for all occasions and were also instructed in clothing construction and color coordination.

Four sewing machines, four stoves, and two refrigerators were purchased to add a considerable amount of efficiency to the home economics courses. Plans were in preparation this year for the joint-course team teaching program between the industrial arts and home economics classes which is to commence with the 65-66 term.

Transforming Thoughts and Feelings Into Art and Music Require Imagination and Talent

To be able to express oneself clearly and freely without the aid of the written or spoken word requires imagination. The art curriculum at Northeastern seeks to develop imagination and talent in this field. Transforming thoughts, feelings, and ideas into a charcoal sketch or ceramic figure tests the ability of the student to apply acquired skills. Projects experimenting in copper and mosaic design were outstanding this year. Tools and supplies purchased by the art department were exhausted within a year's time, but the satisfaction and achievement that came with every project is never expendable.

Expansion was the key word for Northeastern's music department. Miss Davis, Mr. Krone, and Mr. Kurzenabe found it possible to experiment with new areas in musical education never before attempted. From the Broadway musical, "Where's Charley?" to a concert with Kiwanis Boys' Band to the folk cantata "I See A Land," our students demonstrated their enthusiasm and versatility. Rewards in the form of applause from appreciative audiences made the hours of rehearsals worthwhile.

Greatly influenced by television, motion pictures, and the theater, our music department covered a wide scope of activity. Next year we can look forward to a one-act opera and a college choir performance.

You would have been amazed at what went on in that long wing of rooms numbered 301-304 had you passed by them anytime during the school year. The wood and metal shops hummed with activity as projects neared completion. Studies in electronics stimulated the interests of senior high boys. Both boys and girls pored over precision mechanical drawings in the drafting room. These are just a few indications of how varied and how constructive the courses were in our industrial arts department.

The Junior High Annex

Having panel discussions is a feature of the seventh grade English classes.

Educational Television Used in English Class

An experiment of team teaching was successfully conducted in the Junior High Annex this year. Instructors of different courses cooperated to present their students with a central theme of study which tied the subjects together.

Literature was stressed more than the formal study of English grammar. It is generally believed by the teachers that it is more important for the students to understand what they read than to be able to identify the parts of speech. Educational television was also used in discussions and debates.

As a project, the pupils read the poem, "Prisoner of Chillon," by Lord Baron. To supplement this, the students painted abstract pictures to represent the descriptions in the poem.

Laboratory Work and Discussions Introduced to Junior High

Interesting the students in science's profound influence on life was the main objective of the junior high science department. Bringing various animals to class supplemented the seventh grade biological science course. The eighth graders, while concentrating on physical science, experimented to prove known facts. The well-equipped laboratory facilities offered more meaning to the pupil's study of science.

With a new school came a new and modern library. New books and a collection of American History records filled the shelves. Small discussion groups used the library conference room for debates. The library was also used when the students studied for examinations and did research for reports.

Field Trips to Penn State and Philadelphia Highlighted Student's Study

Social Studies courses included a study of Prehistoric Man's advance into the world of today. During these classes, students gained a knowledge of the relatively rapid progress of America's Man in Space Program and associated items. A wide variety of subjects also was covered ranging from a radio program entitled "Colonial Life in York City and County" to such famous personalities as George Washington and Douglas MacArthur.

Resource materials and visual aid centers located on each floor of the building supplemented in the efficiency of the classes' discussions and debates, which are prompted by educational television.

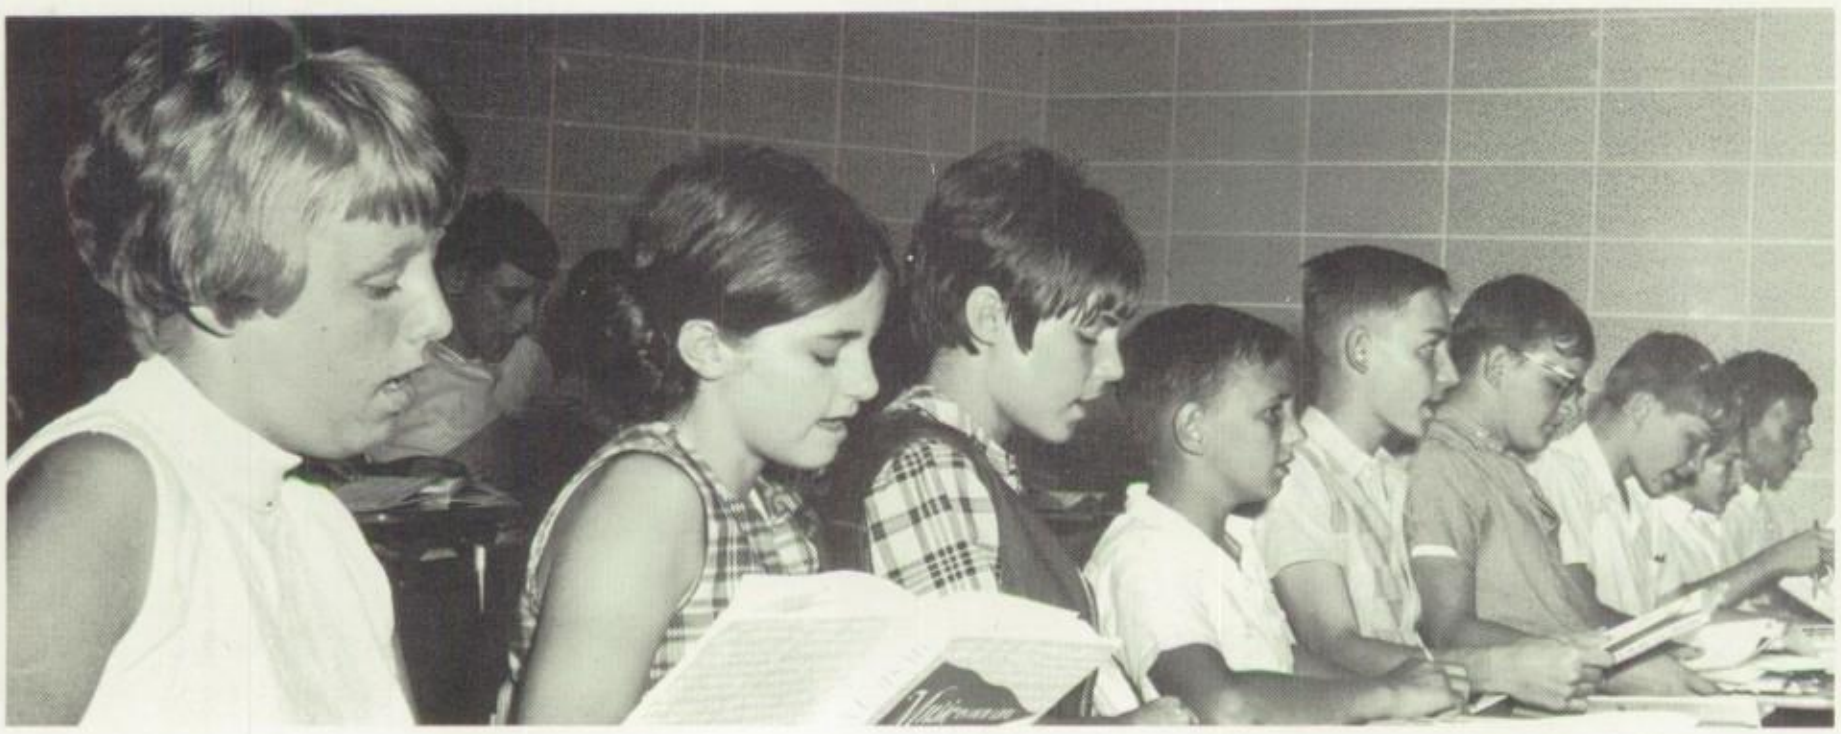
Student appreciation of music was the main goal of the junior high musical department. The chorus sang in the Thanksgiving assembly, the Christmas and spring talent shows, and the awards assembly.



The eighth grade music class ends their class by singing their favorite song.

Boys Versus Girls in Volleyball and Children's Party Were New Features

Boys versus girls in volleyball was a new feature in the physical education program of the Junior High. Rhythmic exercises were also used in addition to the regular sports of soccer, basketball, softball, etc.

For the first time at Northeastern, health was taught in both seventh and eighth grades.

Home economics courses included study in breakfasts, lunches, baby sitting and grooming. Also, aprons and shift dresses were made by the girls.

Highlighting the eighth graders' home economics year was a party for pre-school children. Students served food and entertained the youngsters to give them a pleasant afternoon.

Modern Math and Metal Projects Stimulated Young Minds

For the first time in Northeastern's short history, modern math, the study of the relationship of numbers one to another and to the whole number system, was taught during the entire year in the eighth grade and in most of the seventh grade.

Visual aids for the classes included the overhead projector with which the students projected their own homework on the wall.

Various projects were assigned to the students of the industrial arts department of the junior high school in order to acquaint then with the materials and processes related to industry. Two processes, forging and lathe work, were introduced to the boys this year.

What's for lunch today? Gee, if I don't hurry I'll miss my bus. Come quickly, someone's sprained an ankle down at the track! Has anyone turned in my set of keys? These are just a few of the common situations met regularly by Northeastern's personnel.

Our secretarial staff worked efficiently and devotedly in the transaction of school business involved in the running of such a large school as ours.

Cafeteria workers faced long lines of hungry teenagers daily and feeding them was no easy task. Providing appetizing meals with consideration for nutrition, our entire cooking crew deserve a lot of credit.

Service

Providing enjoyment, entertainment and a balance between scholastic and relaxation hours, Northeastern's extracurricular activities offered a more complete program to the student. A choice of clubs, whether hobby, service, athletic or career varieties, was available. Vocal and instrumental music organizations appealed to a large portion of the student body and drama activities were popular. Assemblies of educational as well as entertaining value highlighted the students' day. All of these diversified and worthwhile activities sought to enrich the students' lives.

Honor Society

Membership in the Scott W. Knaub chapter of the National Honor Society of Northeastern, the most respected and strived for honor of the school, reached a record high of thirty-eight with nineteen provisional members. Celebrating its eighth year of promoting the basic requirements of good citizenship, scholarship, leadership, character, and service, the Society proudly presented its annual induction ceremony.

The Society's field trip to Shippensburg and Gettysburg Colleges and two $100 scholarships were financed by the school's first record hop of the year and a sub sale.

Honor and Distinguished Honor credits were recorded for each student throughout his years in senior high school and awards were received for total accumulated credits. These students received certificates and letters for their achievement and were recognized for their outstanding work.

Student Council

Aiming to promote leadership, good citizenship and student activities, the Student Council has sponsored the lunch-time ping pong tournaments, bundle days, the decorating of the lobby at Christmas, and several record hops after basketball games.

Members of the Student Council are elected annually by the student body; the election of officers is one of the highlights of the year.

This organization, advised by Miss Runion and Mr. Raver, took great pleasure in hosting the 1965 Pennsylvania Southern District Student Council Convention which was held in April.

PASC Convention

Hard work, perseverance, and careful planning made the Southern District Convention of the Pennsylvania Association of Student Councils a great success. Registration of representatives from approximately fifty high schools began at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Due to the absence of the speaker, a discussion was conducted by the foreign exchange students. Before leaving the auditorium, rooms were assigned to each discussion group to air the problems of the councils. Provisions were made for the representatives to acquaint themselves with the exchange students by visiting the assigned rooms.

A banquet was held in the cafeteria for all the representatives. With music provided by the Northeastern Dance Band; an informal dance offered a chance for relaxation.

Yearbook Staff

Layouts, headlines, copy, captions, pictures, and deadlines were problems the yearbook staff faced. This year's staff of fourteen members, supervised by Mr. Raffensperger, achieved its goal by completing one hundred and forty-four pages; the largest yearbook ever produced. Editor-in-chief, Larry Davis, working along with Mr. King as the faculty advisor and other staff members, published six issues of "The Bobcat's Tale."

Play reviews, poetry, athletic scores, student opinions, and teacher interviews were included in the many interesting columns of the newspaper. Many hours of hard work were dedicated to the publication of the newspaper.

Homeroom representatives were responsible for distribution as well as lunch-hour sales.

School Improved Though Service Clubs

Parking, Projection and Printing Club

To many of the clubs and organizations at Northeastern, the Printing Club is a valuable asset. With the able assistance of Mr. Himes, the members of the club printed the majority of tickets and programs for money-making projects and school affairs.

Projectors, speakers, and projection screens were only a few of the mechanisms which the Audio-Visual Club services and operates. During most of the programs which were held in the auditorium, members of the club performed their tasks either from the projection room or on stage. Along with their advisor, Mr. Rutland, the Audio-Visual Club worked for the betterment of the school.

Organized for the first time at Northeastern, the Parking Club contributed much by solving the traffic problem at school events. At athletic events, plays, and special affairs, members of the Parking Club were seen directing traffic efficiently.

Library and Debate Club

Approximately twenty students from the senior high utilized their free time by assisting Mr. Heilman with the numerous duties in the library. Obligations of the members included placing books on the shelves, signing out books, and decorating the bulletin board.

Organized for the first time at Northeastern, the Debate Club, under the direction of Mrs. Gunter, found group discussions and debates to be interesting. Learning to present ideas in a clear and effective manner which wins the support of the listeners was the main objective of the club.

Future Careers Were Explored

Do you want to be a teacher? If you do, FTA, advised by Miss Golembeck, is just the club to help you plan your career. Striking out on their own, this group of prospective teachers sponsored a fall Hootenanny and a doughnut sale to raise funds for club activities. Two club members represented Northeastern's FTA chapter at the state PFTA Convention in Harrisburg in the spring. Guest speakers from fields of teaching, social work, and religion, visits to area elementary schools, and discussion periods highlighted this year's meetings.

Dramatics Expanded at Northeastern

A party line dispute between a conscientious career girl and a debonair playboy was bound to lead to trouble. But in this case it led to the biggest profit a Senior Class has ever earned on its play in the history of Northeastern. Their November production of Pillow Talk, popular as a motion picture, was a winner at the school box office, too. Mr. King, the director, molded the actors into character and the entire production was a delight.

Young Doc, brilliant and hard-working, had a big opportunity awaiting him upon graduation from medical school. He could join an outstanding city practitioner, or go into practice with his father, Old Doc. Thus was the essence of the plot in this year's Junior Class Play. Old Doc was presented February 12-13, 1965, after weeks of planning and rehearsals. This production, directed by Mrs. Helen Miller, was a theatrical as well as a financial success.

A monkey's paw, an old Irish matchmaker and an ugly forest dwarf were the centers of the plots in three one-act plays presented by the Thespian Society this spring. This night of dramatics was sponsored by the Northeastern Teachers Association for their scholarship fund. Northeastern's first experience with arena staging brought unique entertainment for the audience. Thespians also presented a light comedy, "Enter the Hero," in a fall assembly. This year our Thespian Troop 1940 has become increasingly active in promoting drama at Northeastern.

Safety Was Stressed in Athletic Clubs

Boys' and Girls' Gymnastics Club

A dislocation from the flying rings, a somersault with a half twist on the trampoline, a wolf vault over the horse, and a routine on the parallel bars are typical activities of the boys' and girls' gymnastics club. The combined gym club specialized in advanced gymnastics, particularly apparatus.

Safety was stressed through teamwork and spotters were always present during practice periods.

The girls' club was sponsored during the first term by Miss Loy and during the second semester by Mrs. Swope. Mr. Henry supervised the boys' club.

With the proceeds from the soft pretzel sales after home basketball games, the twenty-nine members of the Varsity Club and their advisors, Mr. Allison and Mr. Kessler, attended the New York Basketball Tournament at Madison Square Garden and a major league baseball game in Washington, D.C.

Promoting high standards of sportsmanship and raising academic as well as moral standards were some objectives the club strived to reach.

With the assistance of Mr. Kline, the Hunting Club promotes sportsmanship and safety in the proper handling and use of firearms. Weekly instruction for the members in small bore rifles is conducted at the York Rifleman Association by National Rifle Association instructors.

Photography, Art, Language, Coin and Knitting Clubs

Negatives, contacts, and prints surrounded the members of the Photography Club as they entered the dark room. Following the instructions of Mr. Farcht, their advisor, the photographers learned new techniques in the art of modern photography.

Newly formed this year, by Mr. Koch, the Art Club's objectives were to provide an opportunity for non-art students to participate in some art activities and to allow regular art students to advance to individual projects not offered in class.

Bonjour! Gutentag! Exploring foreign languages and customs can be fun. Northeastern's language club under the direction of Miss Fike, supplemented their meetings with interesting debates, speakers, and discussions. Au revoir! Auf Wiedersehen!

Having taken the place of FHA this year, the Knitting Club proved to be very worthwhile. Under the capable leadership of Mrs. Dunlap, the girls who belonged to the club gathered new knitting skills or improved older ones. Such projects as sweaters and shawls were undertaken by the girls.

Opportunities for students interested in collecting or trading coins were found in the newly formed Coin Club, advised by Mr. Heilman. A trip to the Philadelphia Mint in late April and the arrangement of the display case this spring supplemented the meetings.

Rick Bowen, Greg Kunkel, and Jim Hogue work in the dark room drying photographs.

Varied Programs Entertained Students

Assemblies

Where could you go on a jungle safari and get a lesson in rocketry or safe driving skills? Where could you see a Spanish flamenco dance and hear a hillbilly chorus? You could see all these and more in entertaining assemblies scheduled this term. Affording a wide variety of programs, students got a glimpse of world cultures, science, and musical talent. A number of choral and instrumental assemblies highlighted the year. The Dover High School chorus and Eastern High School band were featured in exchange concerts. Northeastern's senior high choruses joined the composition and speech class in a Thanksgiving Assembly and also sang in a Christmas program. Athletic, scholastic, and music awards were distributed in assemblies and the annual student council campaign was presented. Add to these a girls' gymnastics display and a senior assembly with an original play, folk song and piano composition, and you have a lot of fun and entertainment.

Choral Organizations Performed with Energy

Seventh and Eighth Grade Chorus

A seventh or eighth grade chorus member is a typical youth, bouncing and full of life. He is bright-eyed and enthusiastic. In short, he sings with a giggle in his throat. Add this youth to a tune like "Comin' Thru the Rye" or a Negro spiritual like "This Train Is Bound For Glory" and the finished product is musical enjoyment. The chorus turned cowboy in "The Ballad of Jessie James" and delighted fellow students in junior high school assemblies. The transition from young to mature voice is a squeaking, crackling, straining one, but the chorus members adapted well, ready to advance to the ninth and tenth grade chorus.

and Enthusiasm

Ninth and Tenth Grade Chorus

Ringing young voices, tapping toes, rattling sheet music, and an occasional clang of a music stand are all common sounds to be heard during weekly rehearsals of the ninth and tenth grade chorus. This intermediate group performed in conjunction with the eleventh and twelfth grade chorus in holiday assemblies and Spring Concert. Whether singing a haunting contemporary piece like "Something Told The Wild Geese" or a jazz treatment of "Tuxedo Junction," this group performed equally well. Miss Davis, the director, busily perfected skills of reading, dynamics, and proper breathing to make a polished ensemble, one that sparkled with life before any audience.

Eleventh and Twelfth Grade Chorus

Start with a rich, resonate bass, mix in a mellow alto; carefully blend in a tenor for a little flavor, and top it off with a pinch of soprano and a cherry. Stir three times a week during period three in the Band Room and what do you have? The perfect recipe for a good eleventh and twelfth grade chorus. Master chef, Miss Davis, concocted all sorts of musical enjoyment which was served at holiday assemblies in the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons. A feast of songs was offered at Spring Concert, May 7, where the menu featured a contata of American folk tunes as well as popular contemporary music. The eleventh and twelfth grade chorus was noted for its fine cuisine but the best part of their dish is that they're absolutely calorie free!

District Chorus

A Bach chorale or Braham's love songs, a Schuman chorus or an impressive anthem — all of these could be heard at the Annual Southern District Chorus Festival, February 25-27, 1965, at Eastern High School. Northeastern was well represented with eight voices. Guest conductor, Don H. Razey, from New Jersey, molded this assemblance of outstanding musicians into an enjoyable evening of music for all who attended. Seven of these students went on to Regional Chorus which was a credit to the music education program at our school. Enriched by the addition of six voices, these students comprised the Choralaires. This ensemble performed in conjunction with the Eleventh and Twelfth grade group and appeared in concert with Kiwanis Boys' Band, entertained at Thespian Induction ceremony, and sang at York Hospital.

Instrumental Groups of Northeastern

Senior Band

The ranks of the Senior Band increased this year thanks to growing enthusiasm on the part of Northeastern's musicians. Whether they were boosting school spirits at a night soccer game, giving a concert, or marching in a community parade, our band displayed accomplished musical talent. Under the direction of Mr. Krone, the band marched in several Halloween parades and Manchester's May Day parade.

Concerts at all the elementary schools of the district highlighted spring activities in addition to their evening concert in May.

Student directors gained experience and training in Senior Band, too.

Clicking boots, twirling batons, and waving flags are some of the sights and sounds familiar to the students of Northeastern. Practice for the various activities in which the girls engaged was held after school under the direction of Miss Lease at least once a week, during club periods, and with the band.

With the profit from their doughnut sale, the majorettes attended the three-day Twirling Jubilee in Red Lion where they became acquainted with new routines and skills. By employing the newly-acquired skills, the majorettes were capable of improving the band front of Northeastern High School.

Junior Band and Orchestra

Crashing cymbals, rolling drums, and melodic violins were only a few of the sounds that the members of the Junior Band and Orchestra heard as they entered the band room door. Cooperating to their fullest ability with Mr. Kurzenknabe, their director, the members of the band and orchestra contributed to the success of Spring Concert. After school at least once a week, the girls participating in the Band Front practiced to improve their performance in parades and musical activities.

Dance Band

Titles like "Dancing on the Ceiling," "Fatman's Twist" and "Rubin's Blues" were bound to invite curiosity when Northeastern's Senior High Dance Band performed. As that curiosity was satisfied, the result was a finger-snapping beat. Organized in 1962 by Mr. Krone and Mr. Kurzenknabe, our Dance Band has played at many school functions including the yearbook dance, the Christmas dance, and their own instrumental assembly.

Several practiced musicians went on to District Band, an accomplishment for any student. A spring festival was presented by these musicians from the southern district.

Yearbook Dance

For ten senior girls and their sales managers, October 16, 1964, was a very important day. A dance was held in the school cafeteria by the Yearbook Staff to honor the girl who sold the largest number of yearbooks.

With Northeastern's Dance Band playing "Pomp and Circumstance" in the background, the candidates and their managers were introduced. Carol King was led to the throne at ten o'clock by Ronnie Heilman, her manager, and crowned by Connie Rosinski, last year's queen. After receiving a congratulatory kiss from her manager and a dozen red roses, Carol and Ronnie led the next dance. Joining them on the dance floor after a few moments were the other candidates and their managers.

Prom

"Springtime in Rome," the Junior-Senior Prom, was held May 22 in the Northeastern High School gymnasium for the first time in the history of the school.

Candlelight, pillars, arches, and a romantic atmosphere all contributed to the splendor of the evening. Dancing to the music of Jerry Martin's band, the couples found themselves wandering in the glory of Rome. For those couples who wished to enjoy the night air, a bridge crossing a fish pond gave them the chance to make wishes by tossing coins into a fountain.

During intermission, a buffet supper including sandwiches, cookies, pretzels, and punch was served.

"Candle Magic," the theme of our Christmas Dance was sponsored by the senior class. The annual yearbook dance, during which the new Yearbook Queen was announced, was also a great success.

British Styles Influenced Fads and Fancies

Fads

Madras plaids in a maze of colors were popular this 1964-65 term. From the girls' long straight hair and pierced ears, to their textured nylons, the influence of England's styles was evident. Boys sported longer hair, barracuda jackets, and tapered slacks. This year saw the advent of the big and bold zipper on skirts, and shifts in countless styles were also worn by fashionable girls. With modes changing from week to week, who knows what the future fads will bring?

Sportsmanship

How much more there is to sports than hitting a homerun, kicking a goal or scoring two points for a basket. Winning may boost the team's standing on the scoreboard, but good sportsmanship and the knowledge that you have played fairly and to the best of your capacity boosts the spirits of spectators as well as players. Northeastern has once again been honored with the good sportsmanship award in recognition for the fine standards of our fans and athletes. Although victory has not always been ours, we maintain that most of Northeastern's athletic squads are building, developing skills to be perfected in coming seasons.

Soccer Team Finished

Second in County

With a record of 42 wins without a defeat in league play, the Bobcat Soccer Team took to the field in September, 1964. Two weeks prior to the beginning of the 64-65 school term, 50 ambitious boys were practicing diligently to defend their York-Adams County League Soccer Title. Defeating Donegal and Northern Lebanon County in exhibition matches, the Bobcats entered their season of nine scheduled games.

After running the winning streak to 46 straight games, they were upset by a very determined team of Eastern's Golden Knights, by a score of 1-0 on a penalty kick. It was a hard loss, but it developed in the team a new sense of awareness. After losing the second game in a row, a hard-fought battle with Dover High's Eagles, the 'cats bounced back to win the next 2 games with scores of 5-1 and 2-0. Then, on October 27, 1964, the Bobcats were scheduled for their last game of the season, a game under the lights against Dover. It was an outstanding display of both offensive and defensive tactics, but it was the Eagles' second period goal that stood as the margin of victory. This handed Northeastern its first second-place standing in five years with a league record of 6 wins and 3 losses.

Team Gained Experience

With only two years of experience in league play behind it, an enthusiastic girls' field hockey team embarked upon a 10-game season. Under the leadership of Miss Marilyn Loy, the determined girls took to the field with hopes of making a good showing in their third year of competition. Although they ended the season with a 0-7 record, the girls gained much experience in the competitive atmosphere and the attitude of sportsmanship that goes with it. These girls have not given up their determination and in the very near future with increasing fan support, hope to bring a championship hockey team to Northeastern.

Sr. Varsity Team Maintained an Impressive Record

Closing out the pre-season basketball exhibition with an impressive 3-0 record, the Bobcat hoopsters embarked upon a long, hard season of 18 league games. Determined to prove their prowess, the 'Cats ran up an 11-0 record before bowing to defending county champs, Dallastown. After losing a second game, to Central's Panthers, the Bobcats found themselves riding in second place until a determined Spring Grove quintet rocketed to upset Central in the next to the last game of the season. With fans swelling the bleachers, the two teams took to the court of Hannah Penn Junior High for the resulting play-off game, but it was Central's Panthers who proved their superiority as they won a close 68-57 decision.

Sr. High J.V. Team

One of the most important duties of the junior varsity basketball team is to develop the varsity players of the future and to help maintain the high morale of the present varsity squad. This year's J.V.'s were definitely a vital asset to their elder team, as they supported a final record of 12 wins and 6 losses in the Y.C.I.A.A. Reserve Basketball League, having encountered stiff opposition from area rivals. They also helped maintain the high quality of sportsmanship, symbolical of most athletic activities at Northeastern, which has once again netted the York County Sportsmanship Trophy for Northeastern High.

With continued experience and enthusiasm, the reserve quintet will continue to give the fans some exciting moments as they advance into the varsity position.

With the guidance of Mr. Stammel and Mr. Warner, and the experience these young teams received in competition, students and fans of Northeastern High will observe the 'Cats in repeated title contention in the years ahead.

Boosters

Behind Success

"Behind every successful man is a woman."

Similarly, "Behind every successful team are its cheerleaders." Northeastern is definitely no exception to this well-established idea. This year, under the guidance and supervision of Miss Lease, the junior and senior high cheerleading squads were very active. Many long hours were spent in after-school practice sessions to develop the coordination that is required of an enthusiastic group of girls who want to show their school spirit by supporting their Bobcat team efforts.

Throughout the fall and winter seasons, the cheerleaders were a vital part of the soccer and basketball programs at home and away games. Through both victory and defeat, these girls voiced their support for their fellow student athletes.

Wrestling Team

Encountering many tough opponents in the York County Interscholastic Wrestling League, the 1964 – 1965 Bobcat grapplers closed their season with an unvictorious 0-10 record. Among the 'Cats outstanding wrestlers were seniors Dave Bupp, Keith Paup, and junior Charlie Stough, who closed their individual seasons with 8-2, 7-2-1, and 7-2-2 records respectively. Keith Paup then made his way through district and regional tournaments before losing in the semi-final rounds of the state championships.

With the experience of Coach John Meister and the inspiration Paup has left with his underclassman teammates, the '65 – '66 matmen hope to earn their place at the top of the final standings.

Boys' and Girls' Volleyball: Foreseen Success

Under the direction of rookie coach Mr. Warner, the girls' volleyball team worked their way through a thirteen game season with a 3-10 record. Though winning only three of their games, the girls maintained their high standard of sportsmanship, and it can be foreseen that, with the youth of this year's team, in the near future the girls' volleyball team will be in the upper division of the league standings.

Mr. Henry, veteran coach of the junior and senior high boys' volleyball squads, took to the District 3 Volleyball tournament two strong teams, but was forced to settle for the runner-up spot as they ran into some very stiff opposition. These teams also will remain in hot contention for the District title in future years and should be commended for the very determined effort they put forth in representing Northeastern.

Track Team Won First Meet in Two Years

Suffering from numerous defeats over the last several seasons, the Bobcat trackmen found themselves in cinders and sawdust with a new and stronger determination. Encountering very rough opposition in the beginning of the season, the 'Cats were on the short end of a 0-4 record, then they built up their team to win their first meet in two years against the Eagles from Dover High. The cindermen then lost their last meet, to defending champion York Suburban on a rain-soaked oval, closing the 1965 York County Track season with a 1-5 league record.

Throughout the year, there were many individual athletes who turned in some very outstanding demonstrations of their capabilities. With gained experience, they will eventually be providing opposition that will stand up against their county rivals.

Baseball Team Won Third Place Finish In Western Division

Supporting an outstanding string of consecutive victories, the Bobcat batsmen began swinging in defense of their York County Interscholastic Baseball League title. With the strong pitching of senior Gary Smith and sophomore Brad Krebs and their relievers, the 'Cats were determined to retain their crown. However, the team suffered several upsets which forced them into a third place finish in the Western Division of the league. A strong Central team won the division crown but lost the county title to Red Lion, winners of the Eastern Division crown.

Under the supervision of Mr. Kessler, the Bobcat hitters got off to a fine start as they won their first four league encounters, before suffering their first two defeats of the season under the mighty blows of Spring Grove and Central, respectively. Then the 'Cats ran into a flock of Eagles who were determined to pull off an upset; and they achieved this goal as their lone base-runner stole home in the last of the seventh inning, giving Dover a 1-0 victory. The Bobcats remained in second place until they suffered their fourth and fifth league setbacks, at the hands of Spring Grove and Central as the season drew to a close. With the conclusion of the season the records indicated a log of 9 victories and 5 defeats which gave the Bobcats their first third-place finish in many years.

Outmatched but Ambitious

The 1965 Bobcat linksmen, under the coaching of Mr. Ward, took to the course with high ambitions, but were far outmatched by their rivals as they completed the season with a 3-7 log. Among the outstanding individuals on the team this year was Blake Trimble, who represented Northeastern in the District Golf Tournament. With continued experience and long, hard hours of practice, the Bobcats' golf team will make its stand in the York County Golf League.

They Supported Our Teams

We have reviewed Northeastern's sports and athletes, but there is more to an athletic game than these alone. Spectators are needed to support their team in victory and defeat. Cheering, clapping, wishing and concentrating they are a part of the game.

Our crowded bleachers showed the loyalty of parents and students towards their fellow athletes. Without their support and good sportsmanship, the morale of our team would not have been so high.

The memories of our victories and defeats at Northeastern will live in the minds of many spectators for years to come.

Profiles

Studentship

Northeastern's large classes grow larger, good standards rank better and high hopes mount higher. Underclassmen are responsible for all these changes. From the seventh grade neophyte to the junior on the threshold of his senior year, there is that continuing aim to excell. Possessing the qualities of youth, enthusiasm and curiosity, underclassmen move up through the ranks with much study and hard work. Northeastern shares the parents' responsibility to instill the student with high ideals and good work habits. Underclassmen are fortunate in having not only new ideas, but also the potential of fulfilling them.

230 Juniors — Largest Class Ever at N.H.S.

Juniors became somewhat emotional as they realized almost unbelievingly that their time at Northeastern will soon end. The arrival of class rings brought a greater sense of pride in their school. Many hours of hard work spent in planning the Prom, the sale of "Northeastern Bobcats" license plates and the success of the Junior Class play "Old Doc" revealed the efforts of the 230 class members to make their junior year at Northeastern memorable.

For the tenth graders the greater choice of classes brought with it more difficult subjects, which in turn brought many large assignments including their first term papers. Biology, especially, was a challenge to the students but was also one of their more interesting classes. They found that their fellow students' outlook on life had become more serious since they became full-fledged members of the senior high. The 227 class members were very active in all types of extra-curricular activities andappreciated the greater number of such activities available to them as sophomores.

Freshmen walked into a new world when they entered the senior high. Their teachers began to treat them less as young people being taught and more like adults being aided in the learning process, and expected more from them than ever before. Studies of foreign languages and business practices gave them a broader view of their surroundings. Association with upper classmen helped them to mature more quickly as they approached the doorway to the adult world. As their major class activity, the ninth graders sponsored a roller skating party at Playland Skating Rink for their 205 class members and guests on April 5.

Settled in their new building for the first complete school year, the seventh and eighth graders found that all aspects of school life could be better gauged to their needs when they were partially separated from the senior high. Students and teachers alike profited from the use of team teaching, which allowed teachers a greater opportunity to plan and coordinate the teaching of their programs of instruction.

The bell system was abandoned so classes could be shortened or lengthened according to the type of lesson being taught. This deviation was appreciated by both teachers and students.

An activity period at the end of each day gave the students an opportunity to pursue special interests varying from the Golf Club to the Historic York County Club. Their wide variety of activities included a talent show by the students and dances in their gym. With profit received from frequent pretzel sales, their Student Council was able to purchase a weeping cherry tree for the new school's patio.

Modern school facilities including a sound-proof music room, classrooms with retractable partitions, a well-equipped science lab and special facilities for the fine and practical arts were additional aids to learning at the Northeastern Annex.

Seniority

That seemingly endless progression through twelve years of school gives its reward in the senior year. Northeastern is rightfully proud of its senior class, one that has excelled in scholastic and athletic fields. In years to come, these graduates will look back and recall the memories of their first exciting year as seventh graders, the sporting events and dances or their initial experiences with dissecting biology specimens and identifying unknowns in chemistry. The Prom, class trip and graduation highlighted their final year. Upon graduation the seniors have hopefully acquired sufficient knowledge to take their places as responsible citizens of the community.

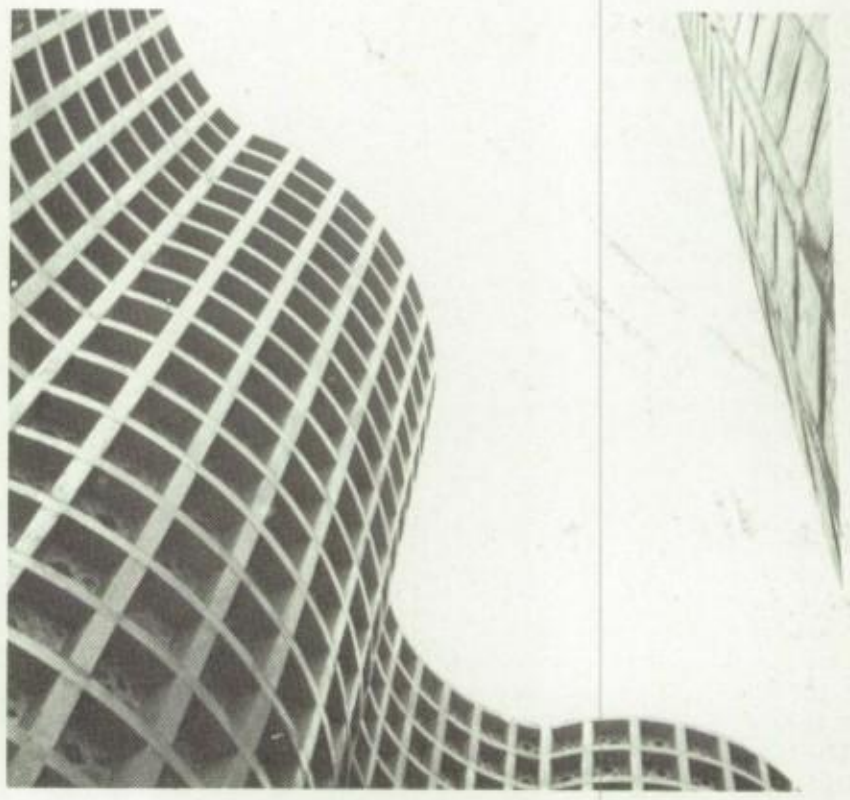
Seniors Spent Day at New York World's Fair

Climaxing the last few weeks of school was the senior class trip to the New York World's Fair. Two hundred seniors arose early to be aboard the five buses before 5 a.m. the morning of May 26.

Approximately twenty-two hours later, each individual of the senior class milled through the experiences they had had that day. The class of 1965 will long remember the fun, adventure, and fascination they encountered at the 1965 World's Fair.

Upon arrival at the Fair, seniors gather in groups to plan their day.



This is a skyward view of the Hall of Science which is a permanent building to remain after the fair closes.

Senior boys active in sports express their talents while performing the can-can on stage.

Seniors Reviewed Class History in Senior Assembly

Various programs were presented during the year in which both the students and the surrounding communities participated. At the top of the list of the programs was the Senior Assembly.

The class of 1965 was complimented highly for its renditions of a Broadway, Greenwich Village, and street scene.

During the assembly reviews of past plays and an originally written play was presented. The Varsity chorus dancing line and the famous Maggots displayed some of their hidden talents.

Folk singers, Barb Keeney, Sue Wolf, and Verna Calvert sing during the Greenwich Village scene in Senior Assembly.

The Combo group, consisting of Leonard Poff, Greg Smee, and Tom Danner, play while the majorettes perform their routine.

Ron Miller prepares for graduation exercises as Clair Leiphart smiles approvingly at his limited number of pictures.

First Class Graduated of Over Two Hundred Members

Seniors, arrayed in their caps and gowns Commencement night, were filled with anticipation of the evening to come.

After processing down the aisle to the all-too-familiar strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," the class filed soundlessly into their seats.

While listening to the senior chorus members sing "I'll Never Pass This Way Again," graduates recalled past experiences in their high school career. Later, hearing about their responsibility, reality, and respectability in the future, given by the three student speakers, Henry Buckwalter, Beverly Reeser, and Luther Diehl respectively, tear-moistured eyes were seen on the stage.

Mr. Sutton presenting the class of 1965, which was varied in potential and fulfillment, finally brought the senior class to the climax of the evening. Mr. Orendorf then presented the diplomas.

Turning tassels, singing for the last time our Alma Mater, and fighting back more tears were just a few of their last memories.

As seniors march down the aisle, parents and relatives watch.

Commencement exercises begin with the procession of graduates to the stage.

Miss Davis directs Senior members of the chorus as they sing "I'll Never Pass This Way Again!"

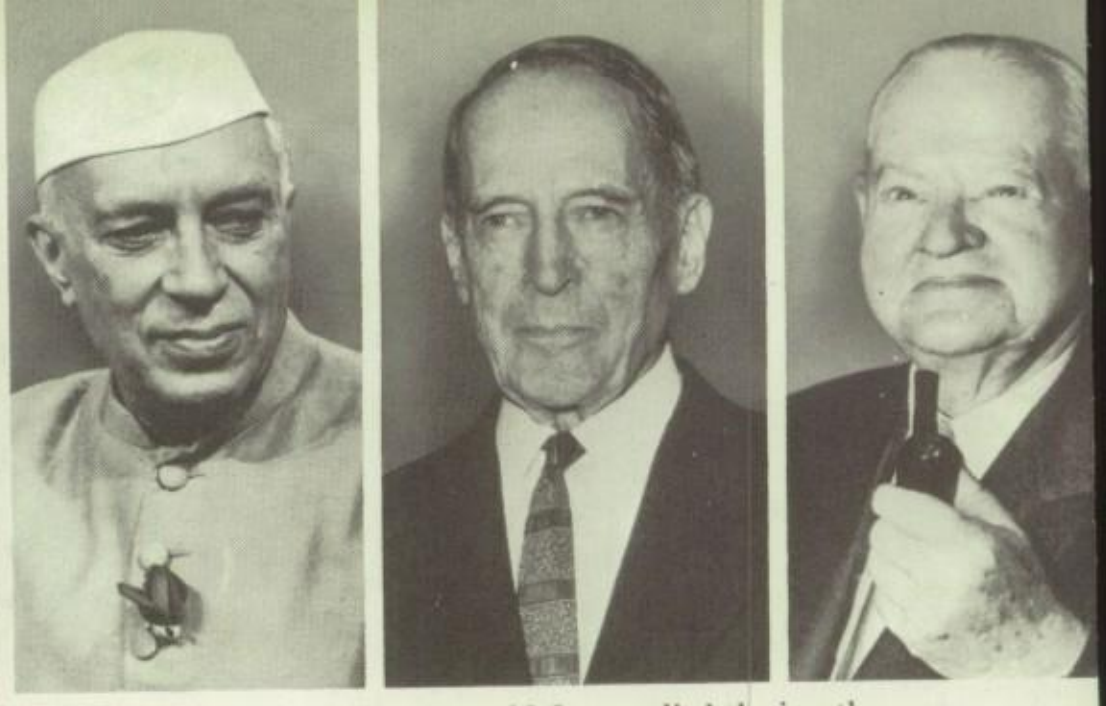
As Mr. Gross congratulates Lanny Delle, Mr. Orendorf prepares to give him his diploma.

We Leave and an Era Has Ended

At the end of a school year when Northeastern's heart of human activity leaves its concrete and brick structure, there remains a still silence. This emptiness only reminds us of the importance of those who were part of that school year. Whatever their purposes, they are terminated because that era has ended and a new one begun.

Improvements are always being made at Northeastern — these must continue to form a better community, nation and world.

Chou Listens—Red Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai held an earpiece as he listened to an address by the Soviet Union's new party leader, Leonid Brezhnev, during a meeting of world Communists in Moscow on November 6. Alexei Kosygin, Soviet premier, is at right.



They Died in '64—These world figures died during the year. From left are Prime Minister Nehru of India, General Douglas McArthur of the United States and former President Herbert Hoover.

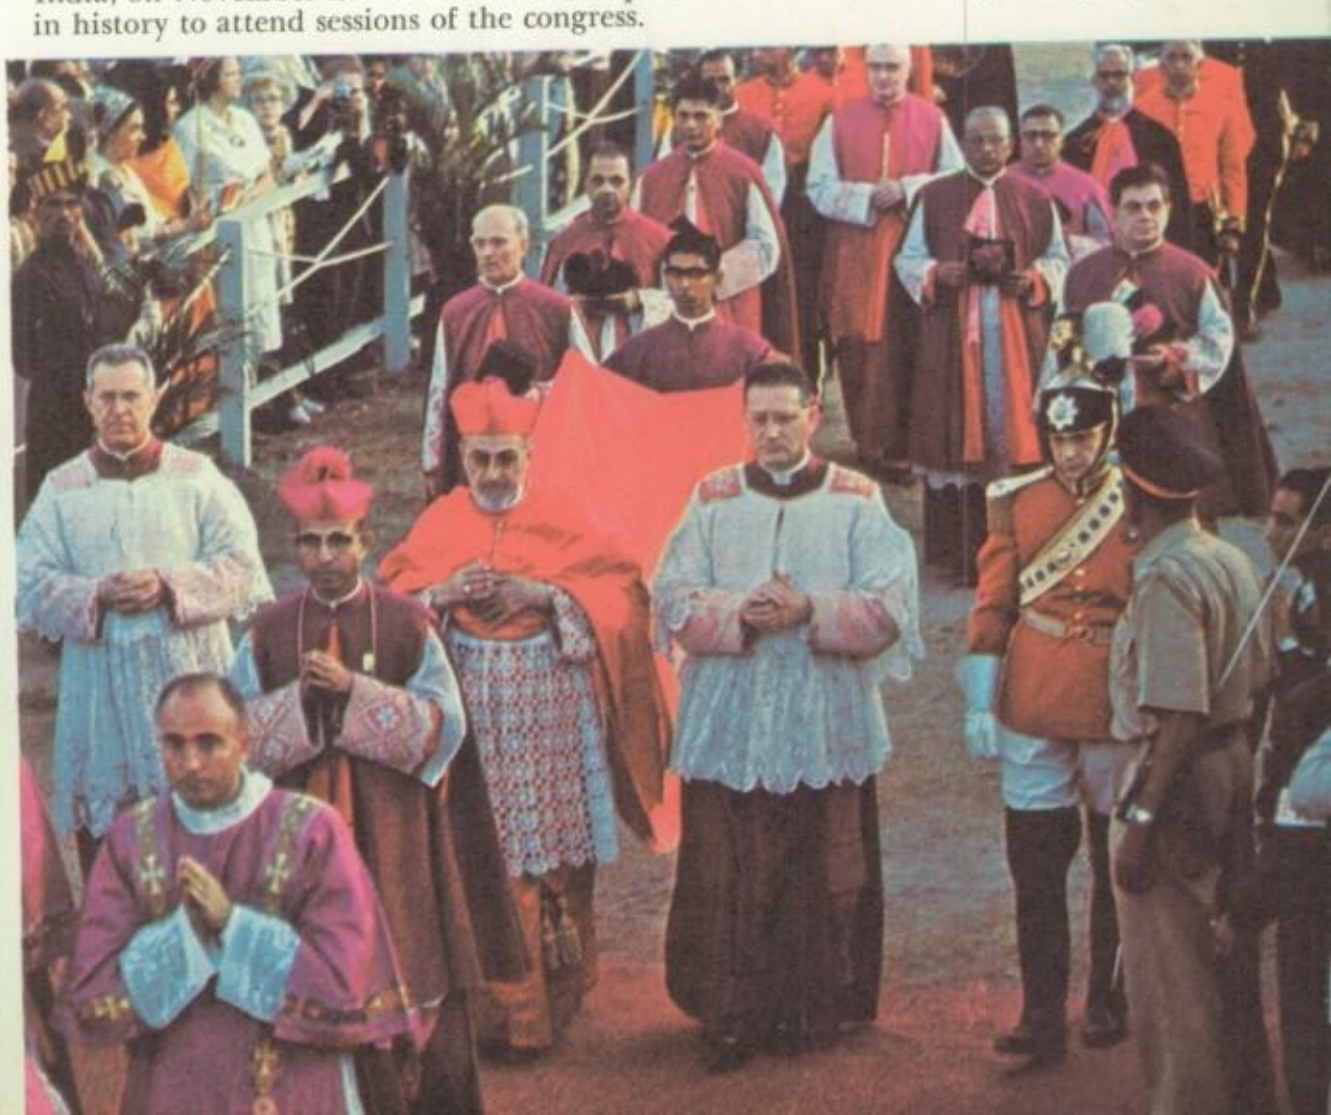
Stretcher Cases—Wounded white hostages and Belgian paratroopers were carried from rescue plane at Leopoldville after it arrived from Stanleyville November 24. The paratroopers descended on the rebel-held Congo city just as a massacre of hostages began, and their quick work saved the lives of hundreds.

New President—Foreign Minister Giuseppe Saragat (right) was formally notified in Rome on the night of December 28 that he had been elected president of Italy.

World Events in Review—1964

Alliance Talks—British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, left, talked with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard in Bonn on November 15 during efforts to find a compromise on a new nuclear force for the troubled Atlantic Alliance.

Pope Visits India—The 38th International Eucharistic Congress opened in Bombay, India, on November 28. In December, Pope Paul VI made the longest papal journey in history to attend sessions of the congress.



Winnie at 90 — Winston Churchill acknowledged cheers of well-wishers who gathered outside the window of his Hyde Park home in London on November 30. The occasion was his 90th birthday.

Tokyo, Japan—William H. Mills (left) of the U. S. A., led Mohamed Gammoudi of Tunisia across the finish line to win the Olympic 10,000 meter event on October 14.

Swampy Victory—A group of Viet Cong prisoners sat quietly in Camau last October while guarded by armed South Vietnamese troops. The prisoners were among those captured during a major battle on the Camau peninsula.

Reunions at the Wall—An East German mother embraced her West German children last November at the Helmstedt railway station after the border dividing East and West Germany was opened for the first time since 1961 for East Germans.

Change of Power—Alexei Kosygin, 60, left, and Leonid Brezhnev, 57, respectively, were named to be premier of the Soviet Union and secretary of the Communist party on October 15. They took over the posts vacated by the resignation of Nikita Khrushchev.
